THE FACTS ABOUT THE JENNINGS ESTATE. -William Jenners died at his town residence, Grosvenor Square, London, July 19, 1798 He was the only son of Robert Jenners, e.q., aidde camp to the great Duke of Marlboro', and was born in 1700, and baptized in September, 1701, when King William III. stood as his godfather. In his youth he was page to George I., and during the long period of his life remained a bachelor. More given to pepuriouspess than hospitality, his wealth increased even beyond his powers of computation. He was the last annuitant of the Exchequer Toutine. He had property in almost every fund in Great Britaio. So great was his estate that the dividends of most of his stocks were not drawn by him for the last ten years of his life. When he died, at the age of ninety-eight, he left no will, but an unsigned bequest to Mr. John Bacon, who would have been the residuary legatee had not Mr. Jenners forgotten his spectacles when he went to his solicitor to sign the instrument. His expenses were three thousand pounds a year. His estate at the time of his death was valued at $10 000 000. After his death the real estate descended to the heir at-law, George Augustus William Curzon, infant grandson of Earl Howe. The personal property went in equal shares to William Lygon, esq., afterwards Earl Beauchamp and the Viscountess Dowager Andover, cousins german once removed and next of kin to the deceased. Notwithstanding the regular descent of the personal property a bill was filed in chancery in 1810 by several persons of the name of Jenners, and Lord Beauchamp was cited to bring the administrators into court. The decision of the court was adverse to the

In 1855 the personal property was valued at $80,000,000; the real estate at an equal amount, yielding an income of $750,000 per annum. Mr. J. P. Benjamin, formerly of the United States Senate, represents the American claim- promptly. ants in this case, which has been pending since 1855 in the English courts. - Washington Tri-

No PICTURE ought to be hung higher than the height of the average human eye when the ORDERS FROM the COUNTRY owner of the eye is standing. If the picture is a portrait, or if it have a human face in it, its eyes should look as nearly into ours as possible, and if there be no such simple guide, perhaps | will be filled with care at these prices. a good rule will be to have the line that divides the picture horizontally into equal parts level with the eye. If one starts in hanging pictures with the determination to place them so they can be easily seen and enjoyed without stretching the neck at least, or stooping the body he will be pretty sure to do well. In remote farm houses and country tayers we often see pichouses and country taverns we often see pictures, particularly portraits, skyed as high as if their owners had been academy hangers. I suppose the reason is that the simple hearted owners think a picture such a precious thing it can't be hung too securely out of reach of med-ding hands. They are often not clear in their minds as to what a picture is meant for, and not finding in it any practical relations in human life and society they treat it with reverence and put it where it will disturb them as little as possible. But, as some people come to enjoy pictures, and get some intellectual, spiritnal nourishment out of them, they want them, as they want their books, where they can see them, and use them.—Clarence Cook in Scribbe sold at popular prices.

GENERAL GEORGE W. COLE .- The death is announced of Gen. George W. Cole, at Mora, New Mexico, on the 11th of December last, of pneumonia. Gen. Cole's name is still well remembered as the hero in a domestic tragedy which resulted in his killing, in one of the corridors of Stanwix Hall, Albany, in 1867. L. H. Iliscox, of Syracuse, then a member of the Constitutional Convention sitting at the capital of the State. The cause of the murder was Hiscox's alleged indignities offered to Cole's wife. The bal from Cole's pistol pierced the brain of Hiscox, who died instantly. Cole was tried twice on the charge of murder, his first trial beginning April 21 and ending May 7 1868, when the jury announce I the impossibil ity of their agreeing upon a verdict. The secand trial was concluded on December 7, 1868, when the jury found a verdict of "not guilty, basing their verdict on the insanity of the prisoner at the moment he fired the fatal shot.

THE CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO CANAL -There is a good presumptive reason for the opinion that freights on the canal for the coming season will be fully as low, if not lower than those current the past year. This presumption is based on two facts: the first is the dissolution of the boatmen's union on the 4th of last October, thereby involving the unlikelihood of any formidable strikes on the part of the boatmen; the second is that the number of boats now on the capal (over 500, we believe) being somewhat greater than necessary to meet the wants of the trade, is likely to render competition among boatmen sharper than ever. The proposed further introduction of steam on the canal will also add to the liveliness of the competition, and decrease the demand for boats. It is therefore extremely likely that no increase of freights may be expected the coming season. -Cumberland Aleganian.

A queer place for a proposal. During the recent terrible peril of the steamer Deutschland, a couple on board who had been "courting" stood together under a mast. "Get up," said the gentleman, "into the mast and I will hold you." She obeyed, clasping the mist with two hands, he holding her up with one. While thus posed he proposed. What a word for such a situation! She accepted, and vows were exchanged. They were among the saved.
